Dear parent/guardian,

As you will know, your son/daughter is studying the A-Level course in English Language. However, according to my records, they are yet to buy the required textbook for this course, the Oxford University Press AQA English Language (A Level and AS). This textbook is crucial for the study and revision of this subject, and students are putting themselves at a disadvantage if they do not have it. Materials from it are regularly used in lessons, and it offers students an ideal companion for consolidating content in their own time, a vital part of A-Level study.

The textbook is available on Scopy for £22, and students will use it throughout their two-year course. The book is also available, for a slightly higher price, on the internet. It is recommended that students check with their teacher if they choose to buy it from there to ensure they have the correct copy. If you have any difficulty buying the textbook, please do contact me via Parentline as we may be able to support you with this.

Yours faithfully,
Mr D. Webster
Assistant Subject Leader – English
